PRESS RELEASE

KUZZLE now available on AWS Marketplace!

Two clicks are enough to allow developers and architects to test the open source Kuzzle backend

Montpellier, Nov 15, 2018 -- Kuzzle, a French publisher of an open source backend platform for web, mobile and Internet of Things (IoT), is extending its collaboration with Amazon Web Services (AWS) and announcing the availability of its eponymous platform on AWS Marketplace. This will allow developers and architects to quickly and easily discover and test the Kuzzle backend, directly from their Amazon Web Services accounts.

Gilles Guirand, CTO of Kuzzle says, "Developers want to test and play freely with a new service to form their own opinion. The fact that Kuzzle is now accessible in two clicks on AWS Marketplace is part of this approach. We want to make our platform accessible to as many people as possible and thus facilitate its adoption. In this spirit, we will also make Kuzzle available in the coming months in the marketplaces of Microsoft Azure and Google Cloud."

The Kuzzle backend drastically reduces the time-to-market of digital innovations. By simplifying and accelerating the development of IoT and mobile applications, it enables developers, architects, and project managers to focus on their core business: innovation and user experience. The open source backend includes a scalable server, a multi-protocol, multi-device and multi-platform API toolbox, an administration management console and the widest range of features on the market to respond to the largest number of mobile and IoT requirements. These include: real-time communication and notification, user authentication and security, persistent data storage, advanced multi-facets and geospatial search, real-time device geolocation and geofencing, analytics and data visualization.

For more details: https://kuzzle.io - Kuzzle page on AWS

About Kuzzle
Kuzzle, a French Tech startup launched in 2015, publishes an open-source multi-cloud backend platform for the Internet of Things which accelerates IoT and mobile application development with out-of-the-box features like real-time notification, geospatial search and geofencing.

Press Contacts
Sophie Imbach Communication & Marketing Manager: simbach@kuzzle.io
Marion Chanson Hikou Agency: marion@hikou.fr - +33 615 711 676